DEMS' PLATFORM BUILDERS TAKE OFF COATS ON BALLOTING EVE

Senator Robinson Day's Ringmaster at Houston.

TEST VOTE NEAR

Delegates Troop to Pine Palace for Third Session.

By George R. Holmes.
SAM HOUSTON, HALL, HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—While the platform builders took off their coats today and went to it behind closed doors, the thousand-odd other delegates to the Democratic national convention trooped perspiring again to Sam Houston's glittering pine palace for another act in the quadrennial show.

Fight Over Louisiana Delegation.
Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, who presided over the stormy San Francisco convention eight years ago, and who is the probable running mate for Governor Al Smith in this one, was the ringmaster of the day. His speech as permanent chairman of this convention was calculated to still further drive home to Democrats the party need for agreement and not dissension on the eve of the campaign.

A test fight that may afford the first official insight into the overwhelming power of the Smith forces appeared not improbable as the session got under way.

The credentials committee voted 42 to 27 early this morning to seat the Smith delegation of 20 from Louisiana, as opposed to the anti-Smith faction backed by Mrs. Genevieve Clark.

Today

Real Money in France.

Brave Swedish Flirt.

Kahn Saw It Coming.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

THE French settle down courageously to the drastic new money rate. Four-fifths of its value is cut from their money as a result of a war WHICH THEY WON. They face that situation bravely.

IN place of paper money, meaning little to peasants and working people, the French again will see gold and silver coins in circulation. The grosse piece, size and weight of our silver dollar, will not come back. Worth five francs before the war, it would be worth twenty-five francs now. But ten-franc silver pieces worth forty cents will be coined, and the French will feel that they are working for REAL MONEY.

STABILIZING the franc is a boon to all Europe, ending financial disorder that has lasted ten years. It is a great achievement by Poincare, worthy successor of Thiers, Turgot, Necker, Sully, and a long list of brilliant French statesmen.

AN ITALIAN message chooses the right words "valorous pilot," for the Swedish aviator, Lieut. Einar Lundborg. He landed his plane on the ice floe where Gen. Nobile was stranded, took that brave officer to safety, went back to the rescue and was himself stranded in Nobile's place by the overturning of his plane.

SLATE ORATORY FEAST TONIGHT

Smith Forces Plan to Rush Nominating Speeches.

HOUSTON, June 27.—If Governor Al Smith's leaders have their way, and there is every indication they are in almost complete control of the Democratic national convention, speeches placing the New York executive and other candidates in nomination will be made at tonight's session.

"The nominating speeches will be made tonight," said George R. Van Namee, pre-convention manager for Governor Smith.

"The balloting will come later in the convention, but just when I cannot say."

After Governor Smith has been placed in nomination by Franklin D. Roosevelt, delegates from six or seven states, including former Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, will deliver seconding speeches.

Van Namee said the New York leaders had received requests from upwards of 15 states asking for permission to join in seconding Governor's Smith's nomination.

Governor Smith's manager indicated he was still confident the convention would come to an end sometime Friday night.

"I can't see why everything shouldn't be over Friday night at the present rate we are progressing," Van Namee declared.

"United we can win," was the burden of his speech. It reflected the sober, contemplative judgment of a majority of the Democratic leaders who are determined here that there shall be no division over prohibition.

"The Democratic party is not a prohibition party," he asserted. "Neither is it an anti-prohibition party. Democrats have always divided on the question."

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
SAM HOUSTON, HALL, Houston, Texas, June 27.—Considerable oil was poured today on the troubled Republican waters through which the Democratic national convention is sailing toward decision.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas himself a likely running mate for Gov. Smith, assumed command of the convention as permanent chairman and his first act was to make a forceful plea to the delegates not to repeat the great blunder at Madison Square Garden.

"United we can win," was the burden of his speech. It reflected the sober, contemplative judgment of a majority of the Democratic leaders who are determined here that there shall be no division over prohibition.

"The Democratic party is not a prohibition party," he asserted. "Neither is it an anti-prohibition party. Democrats have always divided on the question."

REED, ROBINSON IN FIGHT FOR SECOND PLACE

Missourian, However, Appears Doomed to Double Defeat.

TRADE SOUGHT

Barkely, Hitchcock, Donahey, Hull in Picture.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
HOUSTON, Tex., June 7.—A serious contest between Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, for the Democratic vice presidential nomination appeared in prospect today in event Gov. Al Smith is nominated to head the Democratic ticket.

Reed, however, appeared doomed to a double defeat, with the Smith organization throwing its support to Robinson for the vice presidency after first winning the presidential nomination for the New York executive. Every known Smith leader has gone about the convention city for the last three days openly predicting the ticket would be Smith and Robinson.

Some of Senator Reed's closest friends, meanwhile, were known to be angling to win the vice presidential place for the Missourian. Reed thus far has refused to discuss any such ambition.

Despite this denial, reports emanating from Smith headquarters declared the Missourian's friends had been seeking a trade which would make the ticket "Smith and Reed."

Robinson, meanwhile, remained almost in retirement, awaiting the hour when he will be called to the convention to become its permanent chairman.

MIDLAND WORKER DIES SUDDENLY

John Lucas, 53, of Penn avenue, Midland, Pa., died suddenly from heart disease yesterday afternoon while at work in the plant of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel company.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Presentation Catholic church, in charge of the Rev. Father O'Flynn, of Beaver, Pa. Burial will be made in Beaver cemetery.

Carl Tatgenhorst's Leg Fractured
Carl Tatgenhorst, West Fourth street road contractor, is in the City hospital a patient as a result of a fractured right leg sustained on a road job at Negley when struck by a heavy rock.

Five-minute talks by five members of the club will make up the program for the luncheon of the Kiwanis club in the grill room of the Travelers' hotel, tomorrow.

James A. Anderson, Ralph Couch, George Rowan, John W. Moore and Walter B. Hill will be the speakers.

It was on prohibition that he dwelt most. There appeared, he asserted no prospect of repealing the Eighteenth amendment "for many years."

That being the case, he argued that it would be futile for the Democrats here assembled to incorporate a wet plank in the platform, when by so doing they might "drive out of the party many who are unwilling to yield their views."

Peace on prohibition, and a united attack on the Republican record of fraud and corruption during the past seven years was his advice.

The economic equality of agriculture with other industries may be promoted by reducing the tariff on manufactured articles consumed by the farmers; by a system of export debentures; or by the adoption of the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill.

"This convention should invite support from the farmers by adherence to these principles."

Urges Peace on Prohibition.

NICK RIDELLA WOUNDED WHEN HE FRUSTRATES ROBBERY PLAN

Midland, Pa., Truck Driver Believed to be Dying.

SHOT IN LUNG

Police Say Negro Suspect Made Confession.

Shot through the right lung while attempting to frustrate a hold-up on the Ohioville road, southwest of Midland, at 6 o'clock last night, Nick Ridella, 22, truck driver, of Ohioville, Pa., was believed to be dying in the City hospital today.

Edward Wash, Negro, 21, of 349 Ohio avenue, Midland, found hiding along the Ohio river, west of Midland, by Ridella's younger brother, who witnessed the shooting, and Anthony and Joseph Ross, both of Midland, was held as a suspect in the Midland jail.

The dying man, police said identified Wash as the gunman when the suspect was taken to his bedside in the hospital.

Wash later admitted the shooting, according to Chief of Police William M. Fox, of Midland. Steel City police today found a revolver on the Ohio river bank where, they claim, Wash said he hid it.

Amos Elliott Held Up.
Ridella told police he was shot when he went to the assistance of Amos Elliott, Crucible steel mill employee, as the latter was being robbed.

The Ridella brothers were taking home after having left their produce truck at the foot of a landslide covering the road. When they witnessed the hold up.

When the elder brother attempted to stop Elliott from turning his watch and two weeks' wages over to the gunman, he was shot down. The gunman then fled.

The wounded man was taken to office of Dr. J. A. Helfrich, Midland, who ordered him sent to the East Liverpool hospital. Dennis ambulance took Ridella to the hospital, where he was attended by Dr. C. H. Bailey.

Nick Ridella was employed by Angelo Cupani, Midland contractor, while his younger brother sold produce from their Ohioville farm.

Mother of the gun victim fainted when told of the shooting at the home of her sister in Midland last night. Her husband died several years ago.

"RACKETEER" SHOT TO DEATH

"Big Tim" Murphy Slain by Chicago Gunmen.

CHICAGO, June 27.—"Big Tim" Murphy, "racketeer" and one of the most prominent characters of Chicago gangland, was slain by deadly machine gun bullets on his front lawn here last night by three gunmen hired by leaders of a cleaning and dyeing organization, chief of Detectives Michael Grady asserted he had learned today.

Detectives were rushed to all parts of the city today to search for John Hand, Frank Noonan and James Forsythe, wanted for questioning. Grady said he was in receipt of secret information via the underworld "grapevine" telegraph which named the slayers and the motives. Grady would reveal no more until the men he sought are arrested.

Six Killed or Wounded.
CHICAGO, June 27.—Today was one of the busiest days in a decade for Chicago police following a wild night of crime during which half a dozen men were killed or seriously wounded.

The high light of the night's gunplay was the assassination of "Big Tim" Murphy, politician and racketeer, who was slain by gangsters on the lawn of his North Shore home.

Other shootings that kept the entire police department on the jump were: Speeders Shoot Policeman.

Robert Weiss, a West park policeman, was shot from his motorcycle by one of a group of men in a speeding automobile, pursued by Weiss. The officer was shot through the right arm and injured in the crash from his motorcycle.

Sewer Legislation Approved by Council

Auditor Instructed to Certify Life of Bonds; Mayor Empowered to Bar for Relief Work.

Wellsville council last night approved legislation leading up to the issuance of bonds for the construction of the Seventeenth street sewer and authorized a resolution permitting the mayor and the auditor to borrow $1,500 for storm relief work.

Acting in harmony, councilmen approved the request of Mayor Wallace Fogo for the loan, the mayor explaining briefly the size of the clean-up and repair task the city faces as a result of last week's storm.

As councilmen get together, W. B. Nicholson called their attention to the condition of Eighteenth street. Built many years ago and lacking a concrete base as modern streets are built, the pavement was badly damaged by the sudden flood of water with which it was drenched following a break in the Eighteenth street sewer. He suggested that if the street was auditor to certify the life of the bonds for the Seventeenth street sewer was unanimous.

Nicholson told of the money that has been lost on the present sewer and the money that will be lost in the future if conditions are permitted to continue as they are. He said that, in his opinion, "some people are sure about putting in the sewer because they don't want this administration to get the credit for it." Continuing, he said: "I don't care who puts the sewer in—but let's get it built."

"Conditions down there are pretty tough," agreed Lowary, "especially to the fellow who's buying a home." Jack Mosby, Eighteenth street grocer, asked for and was given privilege of the floor.

Mosby declared that he thought a 36 to 42 inch sewer inadequate.

Previous legislators, he said, made the mistake of building sewers too small. His suggestion was an eight-foot sewer.

Diverging from the sewer proposition, he discussed the conditions of the municipal reservoir in Little Yellow Creek. He declared that it now has nine feet of mud in it and that "it wouldn't last for four years."

Councilmen then switched their attention to the old city pump station. Nicholson reminded them that they had been thinking of selling off the equipment at the pump house. "In my opinion," he said, "we had better keep it. I believe yet we'll be getting water from the river."

It was Lowary's idea that the city reservoir be kept filled. Peters sug-

Asks City's Permission to Re-locate Rails.

As a representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, Herman Frushour, Cleveland, last night asked Wellsville council's permission to relocate tracks from Eighteenth street to Twelfth street.

Councilmen, believing that citizens living "over the crossing" below Eighteenth street, who have fought attempts of the railroad company to widen their track system there, should be taken into consultation, inasmuch as the Eighteenth street crossing is practically their only outlet, took no action but decided to call a special session Friday night.

Nine tracks cross Eighteenth street at the present time, Frushour pointed out. According to railroad plans, four will be eliminated and two relocated. Five tracks, in all, will remain if the contemplated changes are carried out.

The railroad company proposes to remove the present westbound main line, running parallel and adjacent to Main street, and use, instead, the present eastbound track for westbound traffic. Another track would be built then, 35 feet south of the present tracks, toward the river, for eastbound mainline traffic. This is planned, Frushour said, to eliminate a curve that exists at present. This, he pointed out, would prove of additional value as a safety factor to pedestrians and vehicle traffic.

This plan, explained Frushour, would leave approximately 70 feet between the two main tracks, eastbound and westbound, taking the nature, somewhat, of a "safety zone."

Frushour urged all haste possible in council's decision so that the railroad company can continue with its extensive new signal system.

gaged electric power for use at the pump house, to keep the old reservoir full.

"Nothing is wrong with the dam" was Mayor Fogo's opening statement as he took the floor for a discussion of water and storm problems. Appearing tired and worn as a result of almost day-and-night activity since last Thursday's storm, the mayor said that City Engineer McGill, Director Imbrie, himself and service department employees were doing all they could to restore conditions to normal. He pointed out that the dam had been given a thorough test. Conditions along Little Yellow Creek were worse, he said, than at any time in 50 years.

He reminded councilmen that the city had been given wonderful co-operation, as he expressed it, from everybody—the mill, the railroad, the Ohio Power company, cities of East Liverpool, Salem, Pittsburgh and from individuals.

"I still say the dam is good," he asserted. "There is not nine feet of mud in the bottom of it. We are keeping it as clean as possible with a 20-inch line at the bottom of the dam. At any event we are not responsible for the construction of the dam, but we are here to take care of it. No one is responsible for these conditions as they arise."

He intimated that some one evidently had tampered with the breastwork along the second mill-dam and declared that "if any one is responsible for the mill-dam letting go, I'll certainly try to collect."

LOCATE SECOND WATER BREAK

City Forces Rush Repairs on Main at Hibbet's Mill.

With business houses, manufacturing plants and private homes suffering to an extent difficult to estimate from the standpoint of dollars and cents as Wellsville's waterless days continued, Mayor W. L. Fogo Service Director George Imbrie, Engineer R. D. McGill and their force of workmen today were rushing repair operations on the second main water line break as rapidly as possible.

It was determined last night that a section of pipe at the blow-off valve near Hibbet's Mill had been broken off and washed away.

Efforts of the city workmen at the point are handicapped by creek water. It has been necessary to crib around the valve and broken line, at the same time operating pumps continually to keep water out of the hole dug to the water line.

City officials last night were unable to determine when the break would be repaired.

In the meantime, a small supply of water is being pumped through the mains by the mill and railroad. The pressure, however, is light, and in many places fails to reach spigots and other outlets at various times during the day.

A PAVEMENT

without a brick surface is like a tooth having no enamel

A BRICK surface is needed to complete the paving job. Brick, toughest, densest road material man makes, gives needed protection from traffic wear.

By thus preserving the life of the softer pavement base, brick surface saves far more than its small cost.

Being vitrified, brick is waterproof. That is important. Bound with asphalt it keeps moisture out of pavement; prevents costly damage and destruction.

In appearance brick surfaced pavements lend distinction to property. Laid to modern specifications they are smooth-riding; safe; easy on the eyes. Also they are by far the cheapest pavement in the end.

"The A.B.C. of Good Paving," a taxpayer's manual, tells in words and pictures how engineers today build over-wearing, low cost, brick surfaced roads and streets. Address your request to National Paving Brick Manufacturers Association, 332 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago

No Airport, No Mail

Once more emphasizing the far-sightedness of the Chamber of Commerce in the establishment of an East Liverpool landing field in Madison township, north of the city, was the announcement at Washington, yesterday, by the post office department, warning that cities which fail to provide suitable airports which will be excluded from service on proposed air mail routes.

Citing their failure to manifest sufficient interest, Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover notified the people of Pontiac, Bay City and Flint that they would not be given the Michigan air mail service which starts July 17.

There will be no quarrel over the ruling of the Washington authorities. The Michigan cities cannot expect delivery of air mail if the citizens and civic organizations fail to recognize the need of landing fields for pilots.

East Liverpool, thanks to the interest of the aeronautical committee and co-workers in the Chamber of Commerce, is awake to the importance of the airplane from a commercial standpoint. And quietly this committee has proceeded with plans for the Madison township airport, with the result that the Ceramic City will be given a place on the air mail map.

Here is another example of what the Chamber of Commerce means to this community.

Exercise of Suffrage

How many men and women will take advantage of their voting privileges in November? There are approximately 58,000,000 citizens eligible to have a voice in the selection of a president and vice president. How many of this vast multitude will actually go to the polls?

Figures disclose that in the last two presidential elections only about half of those entitled to participate have exercised their right of franchise. During the quarter of a century preceding the Civil war, and for 25 years after the close of that war, the United States held the world's record for voting efficiency.

The vote cast in pre-Civil war elections, when the slavery issue dominated the politics of the country, and during the reconstruction period, averaged well in excess of 80 per cent of the qualified electorate.

During the 80's the voting efficiency in the United States began to decline. One of the contributing factors to this decline undoubtedly was the practical disfranchisement of the Negro, for whose freedom human blood had been sacrificed.

But since 1880 the only notable interruptions that have occurred in the declining tendency were in 1896, when the money issue was paramount, and in 1916, when the election appeared to present a choice between participation and non-participation by the United States in the war then being fought so bitterly in Europe.

The lowest percentage so far registered at a national election came in 1920 when only 49.3 per cent of the qualified voters went to the polls. Some states cast only a little more than five per cent of its vote.

Indifference on the part of the voters has been a source of complaint in foreign countries for many years, but political apathy, as measured by general election returns, appears to be more pronounced in the United States at the moment than in any of the other world democracies. England, France and Germany are away ahead of America in point of votes cast.

Here, assuredly, is a challenge to the form of government which has made the United States the outstanding nation of the world. A form of political organization based upon universal suffrage, is a comparatively recent development. It did not exist in the republics of antiquity, for there the franchise was restricted to a very small minority. Nor had it any existence anywhere down to the late years of the Eighteenth century.

It must be remembered that even the constitution of the United States does not enjoin universal suffrage. It merely provides that "all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside." But that's as far as it goes. The constitution confers citizenship, but not suffrage. So there is danger that by neglecting to vote large numbers of citizens may finally throw away their right to vote.

Of course the fact that very large numbers of qualified voters voluntarily disfranchise themselves by remaining away from the polls may be taken by some as a matter of very grave concern. William B. Munro, in a recent issue of The National Municipal Review, says:

"It is the theory of popular government that every adult citizen shall have the privilege of voting; but I take issue with the doctrine that either the theory or practice of popular government requires everyone to exercise this privilege whenever his rulers offer him the privilege to do so."

Drama In Arctic

There is material for the playwright in the heroic air rescue of Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the Italia, who, with 15 companions, crashed in the grim, white wastes of the arctic on the morning of May 25.

Nobile, who yielded unwillingly to demands that he should be the first carried away from the danger of a lingering death, was rescued by Lieut. Tornberg, pilot of the Swedish plane Upland. Nobile and five comrades were found far from the wreck of the dirigible by Tornberg after a cruel prank of fate prevented two other fliers, engaged in the search, from seeing them. And now Nobile is back on the supply ship, Clitta di Milano, steps have been taken to rescue the five followers who were members of his group, and search, too, will be made for ten other members of the expedition who have not been located and whose fate is unknown.

And, in the meantime, the arctic wastes are to be combated for Roald Amundsen, one of the world's outstanding explorers, and two of his men who were forced down while going to the aid of the Nobile party. And Amundsen who had a "falling out" some time ago with the commander of the Italia, is held in the icy grip of the North that had threatened Nobile.

While death stalks about the shelter of these men, radio and aviation are playing their parts in the attempt to release the principals in the greatest life drama the world has seen in years.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

By Frederic J. Haskin.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Reports from Brown, Illinois, of the discovery of mounds containing prehistoric skeletons believed to antedate any relics yet discovered on this continent are stirring the interest of archeologists both in this country and abroad. Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois have for many years been famous for their prehistoric mounds and the ancient relics which have been uncovered but early reports concerning the new find indicate that a wholly fresh and apparently vastly older cycle has been broken into.

The skeletons discovered are wrapped in swaths said to be somewhat reminiscent of the wrappings of Egyptian mummies. An ordered method of burial was followed by these early North Americans, men being buried reposing on the left side and women on the right side. Children held a carved charm of some sort in their hands.

Both North and South America have given up so many prehistoric relics that another find would not be of unusual interest were it not for the fact that the preliminary examinations have indicated that the skeletons just discovered are those of an entirely different people and probably a much more ancient race than the mound builders so far known, the cliff dwellers, or even the temple builders of Central and South America.

Archeologists are strongly opinionated race of scientists, exceptionally tenacious of their own beliefs. To many laymen it may seem odd that the followers of this branch of science can become so intensely excited over the precise placing of people who lived thousands and thousands of years ago. The explanation is that they have patiently worked out theories based on geological and archeological finds and are aghast when anything newly discovered threatens to throw these theories out of joint.

Cynics in these days, when confronted with perplexity, are often wont to exclaim "What difference will it make a hundred years from now?"

It appears that things do make a difference not only a hundred but thousands of years in the future. That is, they make a difference to the archeologists and it seems to be a pertinent inquiry to ask what sort of controversy this new find is going to start among the savants who kind a Leeper interest in what happened in Noah's time than what is going to happen tomorrow.

How far such matters are carried by the enthusiastic archeologists may be learned from a review of the Gizeh controversy, now somewhat dormant, but which has been raging for months and is more than likely to rage again.

In the Spring of 1923 a French farmer named Fradin was ploughing on his land near Vichy in France. With him was his grandson, Emile. The ploughshare struck something hard and when Emile went to investigate he discovered a stone-lined trench filled with a great variety of objects. There were bone and flint fishhooks and needles, clay pottery, carved pebbles, stone rings, and bricks covered with characters obviously representing some sort of prehistoric alphabet. There were masks and images and human bones. No metal of any kind was found.

Young Emile knew enough about archeological finds to understand that scientists set great store by them so he carefully removed them to the farmhouse and made the kitchen into a museum, to enter which he charges four francs.

Fresh excavations were made near where the original trench had been touched by the plough and two tombs were found filled with further relics. More and more archeologists flocked to the scene. Finally, the International Institute of Archeology held a congress at Amsterdam, devoting all of its sessions to the Fradin or Gizeh discoveries. Gizeh is the name of the Fradin property and the disputants are called Gizehians or anti-Gizehians according to their convictions as to the genuineness of the relics.

Professor Loth of the Sorbonne was the leader of the believers in the Gizeh relics. Professor Mendes-Corres of Oporto, famous for his archeological discoveries in Portugal, was his able supporter. The other side was led by Rene Dussa, curator of the Louvre, and he was supported by such distinguished scientists as the Abbe Breuil and Count Begouen, official archeologist of the University of Toulouse.

The discussion grew so heated that a committee of the most distinguished archeologists of Europe was appointed to investigate and report. The French government was represented on the committee. The committee brought in a report declaring the whole thing a fraud. The Gizehians instantly set up a cry that the body was prejudiced and a much of the public as took any interest at all indicated by letters to newspaper that they felt the very terms of the report showed prejudice and prejudice.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Several sight-seeing buses are shortly to invade the Black Belt of Harlem and megaphone its wonders to wide-eyed tourists. The smoky section north of 125th street has been so richly exploited recently that it ranks with the Bowery and Chinatown as an attraction.

Out-of-towners inquire about it more and more and several for-hire hotel guides includes it in their itinerary. More than half a dozen novels and plays in the past year had their locale in the Lenox Avenue environs.

It has become the most talked about Negro section in the world. A crop of colored writers, song makers and playwrights have added largely to its opulence. Paul Robinson is featured in a London play. Claud McKay is writing another novel in Boulogne. Harlem's envoys are in many distant lands.

The recent passing of Florence Mills, the wistful bright-eyed little mulatto who always winged her way back to Harlem from foreign triumphs, received as much newspaper space as any demise during that year. Writers infused a new and romantic glamour to the Black Belt. It was reported "hot."

Josephine Baker's Parisian popularity was something else to wag tongues about the district, for she was a product of the black and tan cafes. The play, "Porgy," with an all-Negro cast, lifted a tragic cripple of 125th street to stardom.

The Harlem Negro business and residential district has been making strides for years, but its discovery was sudden. George Jean Nathan was first to make excursions there and write his Impressions, and then Carl Van Vechten immortalized it in "Nigger Heaven."

The small sprinkling of slummers from down town became a nightly horde of whites in evening dress swarming the cafes and dance halls. Song spirituals were featured at state-by Carnegie Hall. Curious Black Belt slang became a part of the language. And white women acquired dark admirers.

In a night club a white-faced girl informed the head waiter a diamond bracelet of enormous value had become unclasped and lost. It was announced from the floor and a careful search of the room was made. Two hours later, a cloak room attendant picked the bracelet from the chiffon flounces of another lady's dress. It had dropped and become entangled there. And the lady in whose dress it dropped was the divorced wife of the husband of the owner.

In another club a tall imperious creature swathed in chinchilla—or maybe it was nutria, I'm not up in furs—and mounted on jeweled heels came in with a crisp looking gentleman who seemed to be there by sufferance. In fact he was, being one of those moneybags who married hastily out of the chorus. The trap drummer considerably looked the other way as they spun about on the dance floor. A few years ago he was the lady's husband.

The appeal of the night club to me is solely in the taut and electrical tension of the atmosphere. There is a feeling any sort of human drama may explode just around the corner and usually that is so. As a contract the bored attendants are generally in some dark corner whipping off ennui by reading the true confession type of magazines dealing with "actual stories from actual life."

The small shop idea has been a boon to many merchants whose large stores were not so prosperous. Now their display windows have been converted into small specialty shops and the added revenue not only pays their own rent but brings in many customers they never had before.

Window mirrors in small shops are a boon to those mustache fixers who seem to think they have a little streak of Adolph Menjou in them. They are able to get a flock of extra peeks at themselves in their promenade. When some men begin snapping at fifty in New York, they annex a wisp of mustache and the notion they are Heaven's gift to the ladies.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Among the common afflictions of infancy are frequent attacks of vomiting. One of the easiest things for an infant to do is to expel the contents of the stomach.

In the experience of the average adult, vomiting is unusual. But the healthiest of babies may suffer frequently from this symptom.

When I use the word "suffer" in this connection, I do not mean that pain is invariably present, because it isn't. As a matter of fact, the youngster throws up part of the contents of the stomach and then resumes its nursing as if nothing had happened. The act of expulsion is without effort or apparent discomfort.

Getting the child into the wrong position, or pressing on its stomach may cause vomiting. The milk or other food is returned without change.

There are a number of causes. They relate chiefly to the manner of feeding. Too rapid nursing or overfeeding—one of these is likely to be the chief cause of the disturbance. The stomach may be filled with air which has been swallowed in greedy nursing.

There is another form of vomiting that is not wholly understood. I refer to what is called "periodical" or "recurrent vomiting." Without apparent cause, severe attacks occur at quite regular periods.

Personally, I am inclined to believe that these attacks are really traceable to wrong food or to wrong feeding. Contaminated food or some temporary failure in its purity may be responsible.

Of course, there are vomiting spells which are much more serious than the mild and occasional symptoms I have mentioned. Sometimes there develops a more or less serious disturbance of the stomach.

Then we have a marked difference in the vomited material. It is changed a lot from the original food. There may be mucus, bile and even blood in the expelled substance.

In the beginning of some acute illness it is not unusual to observe a vomiting attack. Indeed that may be the very first symptom.

Worms in the intestinal tract are likely to produce so much irritation that vomiting and other symptoms follow. In such cases the intestinal waste is likely to give evidence of the presence of worms.

When vomiting occurs, further feeding should stop. A few hours without food will do no harm and probably cause all the irritation to disappear. In more serious and continued vomiting attacks, it may be necessary to reduce the feedings or to prohibit food for a longer period. In such cases you will have a doctor, of course, and he will direct the treatment.

If the attacks of slight vomiting are frequent, you must take advice regarding the food and also the way it is given the child. Correction of some slight mistake will remove the trouble.

M. D. S. Q.—My legs and thighs are too small for the rest of the body. What would you advise?

A.—Gaining weight in general will bring about results and any exercise which involves the muscles of the legs should also be helpful—running, climbing, dancing, skating, brisk walking, etc.

C. C. Q.—What will remove brown moles from the face and neck?

A.—Small moles may be removed by the electric needle. The X-ray, radium and dioxine have been successfully employed in getting rid of moles. All these methods of treat-

Other Editors Say

Fallibility of Saws.

The assistant principal of a Cleveland high school, besides attending to the administrative duties and lecturing classes, preaches, runs a 12-acre truck-farm, writes books and runs a private printing press.

"Diversity of interest," he says, "is the key to a happy life. I need less sleep because I do so many different things each day. I'm happier and better off. The old saw, 'Jack of all trades is master of none,' is untrue, like most old saws."

Here is a heresy that must be investigated at once. The infallibility of proverbs is a strong plank in every man's credo. Suppose we consider a few of them.

"An empty bag cannot stand upright." Fill it with helium gas and it will carry you over the North Pole. "Speech is silver; silence is gold." Silence doesn't get any signatures on insurance policy applications.

"A wise son maketh a glad father." Not when the son starts correcting the old boy.

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." Nobody ever became a millionaire by burying his savings under the hearth.

"Money is the root of all evil." Hunger must not be an evil then.

"Like father, like son." For example, Theodore Roosevelt, sr., and Theodore Roosevelt, jr.

This is an age of inconclasm. Magazines are successfully being conducted upon the theory that the public likes to get the low down on its popular idols. In these days when we are reliably informed that George Washington had a hand like a ham and didn't have any too good manners; that Abraham Lincoln, for all that he was born in a log cabin, came of substantial middle-class stock; that Mark Twain wasn't so much an author—in these days we can't expect even the proverbs to stand without scathe.

By J. J. Mundy.

Learn to Take Your Medicine. All your life someone has been at hand to help you over the stones.

Someone has smoothed your pathway from the cradle up to now.

You have gotten to the point where you are surprised at obstacles.

You wonder why anyone should want to get in your way.

You have long since ceased to put forth your utmost effort in any direction because when you did work hard you found that it was useless because conditions were eventually smoothed by some good angel.

And now, since you have not done your best along some certain line, you find that that fact has blocked your purpose in its fulfillment.

You can't quite understand why someone does not come to the rescue.

Perhaps it would be better for you if your family and friends let you work things out and learn a lesson from the results of your lack of labor.

You never did think it necessary to work hard.

If you were tired you quit work and rested.

If social diversions came your way, even when you were busiest you dropped the duty and had a good time. Now your obstacles are your medicine.

Take it and get well.

It is probably the treatment you should have had years ago.

GROUP OF SENATORS WRITING DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM IN 1928

HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—Again a group of senators is writing the Democratic platform.

There are no less than ten of the platform committee, headed by Senator Key Pittman of Nevada. Senatorial colleagues not on the committee are also assisting in framing the draft.

The Wilson influence is represented by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, who is the Ohio member.

Three militant drys—Senators Glass of Virginia, Caraway of Arkansas and Blaise of South Carolina—are leading the crusade for the bone dry plank. They are assisted by Gov. Dan Moody of Texas and former Secretary of Navy Daniels.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who was keynoter in 1924, is on the committee, as are also Senator Bratton of New Mexico and former Senator Stanley of Kentucky.

was taken on Louisiana's 20 contested votes, the count stood 42 to 7.

The anti-Smith coalition was some- what deflated by the count and postponed, until later, their final decision on whether they would submit a minority report on Louisiana to the full convention.

The opposition delegations from the Canal Zone and the District of Columbia, six votes each, were seated after only perfunctory debate. The same was true of three district delegates from Pennsylvania. The big fight was on the Louisiana delegation, which the anti-Smith group character- ized as named without the formality of a state convention.

The anti-Smith bloc determined to throw itself into the fight in the hope of forcing a roll call on the minority report of the floor on the direct question of seating a delegation al- leged to have been selected by irreg- ular methods.

CHILLICOTHE, O., June 27.—A mother of five children, Mrs. Orville Abney, 36, Bainbridge, is dead here to- day from burns received when kero- sene, which she was using to start a fire exploded late yesterday.

A neighbor, hearing screams, arrived to smother the flames, saving the life of a 5-month-old baby, whose cloth- ing had caught fire when the liquid exploded. Firstaid was given the mother, but proved unavailing. Win- dows of the house were blown out by the force of the explosion.

How the most Beautiful Clothes in the World are kept New-Looking twice as long with Lux

Amazing experience of Movie Studios ·· Famous Dressmakers
Department Store Buyers ··
New York Musical Shows ··

Here is experience that will help you to keep that beautiful new look in all your lovely things—

So now every great movie studio, every musical show in New York, uses Lux—to get DOUBLE WEAR!

NO matter how much or how little you pay for modern clothes, they are sheer! They lose their new look so quickly; wear out so soon! But there is a way to keep them enchantingly new—much longer!

Read these facts—results of tested experience!

Dollars and Cents Test

The great MOTION PICTURE STUDIOS of Hollywood, the glittering New York MUSICAL SHOWS, tried out different soaps for cleansing modern fabrics and clothes.

And discovered that, when cleansed safely in LUX, costumes and stockings stay like new more than twice as long!

Experts Use Lux

And additional groups of experts—recognized as final authorities on fabrics—confirm these wonderful results!

Department store buyers—92 out of every 100 women buyers interviewed in 112 leading stores—insist on Lux for their own precious things.

Exclusive Dressmakers—In New York's famous FASHION establishments, where the beautiful women of society buy wonderful clothes—ONLY LUX is used for cleansing delicate lingerie and stockings worn by mannequins. Lux keeps sheer things fresh—like new—so much longer!

LIVING MODELS DISPLAY GORGEOUS GOWNS!

The above picture gives a glimpse "behind the scenes" in the fashionable salon of Frances Clyne, exclusive dressmaker.

In New York's great establishments of dress, the lovely underthings and hosiery worn by the models must always look new!

Only Lux will keep them beautifully fresh and lovely, say New York's most famous dressmakers—Hickson, Hattie Carnegie, Tappé, Kurzman, Bergdorf-Goodman, Stein and Blaine, Milgrim, Jay-Thorpe, Frances Clyne, Bruck-Weiss.

Women everywhere use Lux! In 8 out of 10 representative homes in cities from coast to coast, investigations show, Lux is used. To keep modern clothes like new so much longer!

DEPARTMENT STORE BUYERS SELECT SMART CLOTHES:

Three buyers in the New York showroom of Jesse Woolf and Co., buying summer frocks for their stores. These women buyers are sent frequently to Paris and New York to purchase fashion apparel. They are experts in clothes!

Now, for the first time, the buyers in 112 leading stores in cities from Boston to Los Angeles, have told their own secrets of clothes care. For their own precious things, 92 out of every 100 interviewed insist on safe Lux cleansing.

$300,000 WORTH OF COSTUMES USED IN "DON JUAN," STARRING JOHN BARRYMORE—

a Warner Bros. super-film. "Everything in our studio which is washable at all is washed in Lux," says J. L. Warner, vice-president of Warner Bros. "Actual tests made us adopt the rule, 'use only Lux'."

Now every important studio in Hollywood uses Lux to save millions of dollars in wardrobe expenses.

THIS ZIEGFELD SHOW USES LUX: IN "ROSALIE," brilliant Broadway success featuring the adorable Marilyn Miller (center), the sheer, long stockings worn by stars and choruses are kept like new with Lux. Every other musical show in New York also uses Lux to double the life of stockings. As the Shubert General Manager enthusiastically puts it—"We would use Lux if it cost $1.00 a box. Lux cuts stocking bills in half."

LUX IS SO PURE that the famous New York Maternity Center uses Lux in cleansing all baby things, so that there can be no risk of irritating the baby's tender skin.

This gives vivid proof of the purity of Lux and the great care with which it is made. For organizations such as the Maternity Center have submitted Lux to most rigid analysis and tests before choosing it officially. No wonder Lux never harms delicate colors or fine fabrics.

APPEAL TO FOES OF SMITH TO HOLD LINES AT HOUSTON

VICTORY SIGNS FOR GOVERNOR CAUSE FLURRY

Note of Bitterness in Fight Against Al's Nomination.

SIMMONS ON JOB Party Leaders Dwell Upon Speech of Keynoter.

By George R. Holmes.
HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—The apparent ease with which Gov. Al Smith is coasting to victory in the Houston convention galvanized his opponents today into a flurry of desperate activity.

For the first time since the convention opened, a note of the same bitterness which characterized the Madison Square Garden experience crept today into the efforts of the anti-Smith people to prevent the seemingly inevitable nomination.

In the face of the apparent certainty that Governor Smith will have in excess of 700 votes on the first ballot, Frank A. Hampton of North Carolina, representing Senator Simmons, issued an appeal of almost evangelical fervor today to the anti-Smith forces.

GATE CRASHER MEETS WATERLOO

SAM HOUSTON HALL, HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—"One-Eyed" Connolly, the famous gate crasher, who claims to have crashed Buckingham palace once, met his Waterloo today.

Two husky Texas longhorn policemen who were guarding one of the doors to the Democratic national convention, penetrated "One-Eyed's" disguise as a pop vendor just as the convention opened this morning and they ejected him in a manner that didn't help Mr. Connolly's dignity one whit.

They took him by the coat collar and the trousers and threw him far and wide from the convention door with an appropriate warning not to try it again.

"The anti-Smith and the anti-Tammany lines are holding firm," said Hampton, "and they embrace considerably more than one-third of the convention."

"Let every Hull supporter, every Reed supporter, every George supporter, every Woolen supporter, every Donahay supporter and every supporter of the other able and well equipped Democratic candidates be not deceived."

"Privilege and Pillage" Issue.
The party leaders chose to dwell upon the real operator of the convention and the keynote speech of Claude G. Bowers—a speech which brought 1,100 delegates to their feet time and again as the main theme which Bowers thundered at them. That theme was "Throw the Rascals Out."

The keynoter didn't mention prohibition, candidates or any of the controversies that may possibly beset and perplex this gathering of Democrats. He hammered hard and he hammered exclusively on the contention that the Republican administration of the last eight years have been corrupt and that the principal issue in the approaching campaign is "privilege and pillage." On that issue, the keynoter contended, all Democrats can unite.

The exhortation which the keynoter gave to the administration's agrarian policy, together with the convention's demonstration of approval, afforded a demonstration of what may be expected in the Democratic platform.

Platform Committee Busy.
George Peek, the representative of the embattled and unsuccessful farmers who stormed the Kansas City convention, is collaborating with Bernard Baruch of New York in the construction of the farm relief plank in the platform.

The platform committee got down to business today under the leadership of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada. The principal fight centered about prohibition, but there was every indication that in the end the controversy would be settled by the adoption of a strong law enforcement plank.

Meanwhile, the nomination of Smith either on the first or second ballot and the selection of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas as his running mate, was considered by party leaders to be in "the bag." Robinson's nomination was not in the same category of inevitability, but the Smith people have given him the "O. K." and his senatorial colleagues on the scene here, who largely dominate their respective delegations, were working industriously for him.

"Racketeer" Slain

The speeders escaped.
The body of a man believed to be a slain gangster was found early today in a clump of bushes near Broadway. The man, unidentified, apparently had been "taken for a ride." His body was bullet pierced.

A man identified as Nicholas Maner, 35, was shot and killed by an unknown assailant during an argument over a woman.

Out in Cicero, western suburb, two persons were shot when police tried to quell a riot of 200 citizens bent on tearing up the newly laid tracks of the Chicago Belt Line railroad. The mob of citizens objected to an extension of the railroad through their neighborhood.

ONE DELEGATE USES CONVENTION RADIO TO REPORT TO HIS WIFE

HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—There's one delegate to the Democratic national convention who reports regularly each day to his wife away back in the small hamlet of Wheatland, Monroe county, New York.

And he does it by radio, but without the knowledge or approval of the radio officials.

When William C. Page, left Wheatland to journey south to the convention he tucked a police whistle in his pocket telling Mrs. Page to listen carefully on the radio each day for three or four blasts of the whistle.

Ever since the convention opened delegates, and spectators have been mystified when every little while a sharp whistle could be heard above the tumult and noise. Every one thought the whistle was the signal for something, but nothing happened.

Today the mystery was solved. Mr. Page was merely reporting to Mrs. Page.

Robinson's Speech

Senator Robinson's speech, in part, follows:
"We face a notable political crisis. The exercise of sound judgment and common sense in the nomination of candidates."

"The Democratic party has a mission which has not materially changed since the days of Jefferson. The necessity for political reform is greater now than ever before. Our party, from its birth, has safeguarded the rights of the masses. It has championed personal liberty and opposed centralization."

"Jackson aroused the public to the menace of plutocracy. Cleveland voiced resentment at the abuse of the taxing power to enrich favored groups by the exploitation of the masses. Wilson defined anew the Democratic ideals of justice and equality."

Defender of Business, He Says.
"In this campaign the Republicans cunningly seek to raise false issues through which to win their way into favor."

"The national administration during the last seven years is indefensible from any standpoint. The assertion of our opponents that the Democratic party cannot be trusted to promote sound business is totally false. The Democratic party has at no time interfered with lawful enterprises. It is the defender of legitimate business."

The boldest champion of the opposition cannot recall another time when prosperity was more general. Labor was profitably employed; industry full time; agriculture was on an equality with other businesses.

"The prosperity of the present by no means equals that under Democratic control."

"The facts on the whole do not justify the boast in the Kansas City platform."

Hits Claim of Prosperity.
"The secretary of the treasury admits in his annual report for 1927 that conditions during that year were worse than in 1926."

"The president's industrial conference board asserts that business prosperity in the United States is confined to giant corporations. The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce examined one hundred thirty-four thousand of them earning no profits whatever."

"The commissioner of internal revenue states that only three-fifths of the corporations manufacturing textiles and the same percentage of corporations manufacturing leather products reported net incomes for 1925."

"The record of commercial and bank failures reflects the falsity of this claim of exceptional prosperity."

Cites Bank Failures.
"In 1919, only 50 state banks and four national banks failed with aggregate liabilities of less than $12,000,000; in 1925 three hundred and sixty-one state banks with total liabilities of $175,000,000 passed into receiverships. Note the figures for 1925: Seven hundred and seventy-two state banks failed with liabilities of $266,000,000."

"There were 29 per cent more commercial failures in 1927 than in the previous year."

"Annual farm products decreased more than $1,500,000,000, comparing 1924 with 1927."

"The bureau of labor statistics reveal a 20 per cent decrease now in employment over 1927."

"Agriculture, greatest of all industries, has been steadily declining since Republican party initiated its policy of deflation in 1921. Everyone knows that agriculture has been going backward since Wilson's administration ended. Never before has there existed such discontent among farm producers. They attribute their distressed condition to the policies of the Republican party. Why should farmers be compelled to sell their products in the open markets of the world and to buy from trusts and monopolies which arbitrarily fix the prices of their commodities—an unjust and oppressive system made possible by excessive tariff duties? The farmers of the nation are awake to the issue. They are ready, if afforded the opportunity through political action. The Republican party has betrayed the farmers of the United States and now seeks again to deceive them with new false promises. The only specific measure for farm relief pledged by the Kansas City platform is increased tariff duties."

Attacks G. O. P. Platform.
"The economic equality of agriculture with other industries may be promoted by reducing the tariff on manufactured articles consumed by the farmers; by a system of export duties; or by the adoption of the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill. Such equality can never be established merely raising the tariff on importations of products which are grown in substantial surplus above domestic requirements."

"This convention should invite support from farmers by declaring adherence to these principles."

"The mingled stupidity and audacity which prompted the Kansas City convention to boast a prosperity evidenced by insolvent banks, bankrupt farmers and merchants, and by millions of unemployed laborers, invite decisive political revolution. The farmers of the west and of the middle west will not support Mr. Hoover. He has led the forces opposed to the McNary-Haugen bill and challenged its advocates."

"The false pretense underlying the Republican claim of unusual national

MANTELL, NOTED ACTOR, DIES

Wife and Son at Bed-side in Atlantic Highlands.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., June 27.—Robert B. Mantell, noted Shakespearean actor, died shortly after noon today in his country home, "Brucewood," here.

With Mr. Mantell when he died were his wife, Mrs. Genevieve Hamper Mantell, and their son, Bruce. A daughter was reported to be on her way from the Pacific coast, but failed to arrive in time to be at her father's bedside.

Mr. Mantell suffered a general breakdown about six weeks ago while on a tour with his Shakespearean theatrical company in Baltimore, Washington and other eastern cities. This breakdown followed another less serious, suffered last winter while the veteran actor and producer was touring in the west. For the last week Mr. Mantell's condition had been regarded as critical.

'HEART'S IN TEXAS,' MRS. SMITH HEARS

HOUSTON, June 27.—"My Heart's in Texas, Down on the Rio Grande."

This was the song that greeted Mrs. Al Smith today when she picked up the telephone receiver to answer a call from Governor Smith at the executive mansion at Albany.

Every day since Mrs. Smith has been at Houston she has received a telephone call from the governor.

CONVICT SLAIN IN ELMIRA PLOT

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 27.—Following the frustration of a plot to kill the guards at the Elmira reformatory and escape, one convict is dead, another is seriously injured, and two badly beaten guards are in Arnot Ogden hospital today.

Dems Build Platform

Thompson of New Orleans, a daughter of the late Champ Clark, who has been an indefatigable worker for Senator Reed of Missouri.

The ousted delegation threatened to force a vote in the convention itself on the action of the credentials committee by presenting a minority report.

Predict Smith Victory.
An easy victory for the Smith delegation, headed by Governor Huey P. Long, and Colonel Robert Ewing, was anticipated whenever the convention got around to the voting stage. The Smith people are securely in the saddle and riding easily all down the line.

In every direction save that of prohibition, the Democrats seemed today to be steering toward the harmony that has not been theirs since the 1916 convention.

And the leaders were hopeful that even there a strenuous fight can be avoided.

The young red-headed governor of Texas' Dan Moody, however, has still to be placated on the wet-and-dry issue.

Moody in "Boy Orator" Role.
The Texas Democrats in their state convention adopted a real bone-dry plank, and Governor Moody, who is credited with aspirations toward becoming the "boy orator of the Brazos" as Bryan was "the boy orator of the Plate," considers he has a mandate to wage a fight in this convention for the adoption of the Texas plank.

Governor Moody announced this morning he would be content with no mere law enforcement plank on prohibition.

"In all the years of prohibition," he said, "the only evasion that has been found on prohibition is to say you stand for law enforcement."

The Republicans have already grabbed that hiding place, and there isn't room for two political parties behind it.

Seats Empty at 11 O'clock.
At 11 o'clock, the scheduled hour of convening, most of the delegate seats were empty.

Franklin Roosevelt hobbled in and again held impromptu court in the center.

Roosevelt is the floor manager of the Smith forces and will nominate the New York governor, as he has done at the last two Democratic conventions.

Norman Davis, a member of the Morgan firm and a former assistant secretary of state; John W. Davis, the 1924 nominee; Senator Peter Gerry, of Rhode Island, who married Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt; "Cy" Cummings, the big Marylander from Washington, and George W. Olvany, the Tammany leader, were among those about the Smith generalissimo.

Roosevelt was smiling and confident. He sees in this convention the successful culmination of eight years of effort. When he stands on the platform, probably tonight, and places the name of the New York governor before the convention he knows that this time it's going to "take."

Just before the convention opened word reached the platform that the Oklahoma delegation, which has been the bone of contention between the Smith and Reed forces, had caucused and decided to vote 10½ for Reed and 9½ for Smith on the first ballot.

Gavel Falls at 11:45.
It was 11:45 before Claude Bowers' gavel fell a-banging. At this time the hall was jammed, packed and perspiring profusely. Sixteen thousand people even in a hall as big as Sam Houston's aren't conducive to refrigerating the atmosphere.

The Rev. Curtis Gilmore pronounced the invocation. He prayed for prosperity, for wisdom in the decision of great issues, for cooperation and for human brotherhood.

FEAR 10 DEAD IN POLAR FLIGHT

LONDON, June 27.—The death list in the ill fated Noble polar expedition may reach 10.

Advices received today revealed that the body of the dirigible Italia was in flames when last sighted with six men aboard. It was being borne in the teeth of a gale which whipped the flames over the gigantic gas bag. This revelation led to gravest fears that all on board perished.

One member of the expedition, Vincent Pomella, (Vincenzo Pomella) was killed in the crash of the Kondola on the ice.

Professor Fenn Malmgren and two companions who set out over the ice to try to find land, have been missing 32 days and belief is growing that they have died of starvation and exposure.

WOMAN RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Norma Henderson, Joetown, suburb of Newell, was cut when struck by an automobile driven by Elmer Heath, also of Joetown, on the Sixth street hill, near Newell, at 7 o'clock this morning.

A. C. Greer, another Joetown man, had stopped on the road to pick up Mrs. Henderson, who was on her way to work at one of the Newell potteries. Heath, driving another car, close to the Greer automobile was about to pass Greer when Mrs. Henderson stepped in front of him. He swerved his car, the rear end striking the woman but the car darted over the side of the road before he could stop it.

The automobile overturned when it struck a tree but Heath was not injured. Mrs. Henderson was taken to the office of Dr. V. E. McEldowney, Newell, where her injuries were dressed and she was then removed to her home. McElravy Brothers towed Heath's car back to the road.

THOMAS PROBERT, BRICKLAYER, DIES

He graduated in bookkeeping and commercial law from Richmond college. He was a member of the Anderson Methodist Episcopal church, Knights of Pythias and Bricklayers' union.

He leaves his widow, nee Miss Margaret Reilly, of Streator, Ill., one daughter, Margaret; one brother, Samuel Probert, of Colorado, and three sisters, Mrs. Annie Probert, Jewett, O., Mrs. Daniel Poggs, Richmond, O., and Mrs. Charles Pracht, this city.

FACES CHARGE OF NON SUPPORT

John Ellison, 25, who surrendered to police Saturday has been taken to Ashtabula where he will answer to a charge of non-support, preferred by his wife.

He came here last Friday with a group of about a dozen magazine solicitors and on Saturday went to City hall where he told police that he was wanted in Ashtabula. He was held pending the arrival of Chief of Police Kane.

TOLEDO BANDIT FLEES WITH $1,000

TOLEDO, O., June 27.—A lone bandit entered the West Toledo branch office of the American Savings association at noon today, forced Gertrude Gifford, 16, alone in charge of the office at the time to fill a bag with money, thought to be between $500 and $1,000, and escaped in an automobile left parked nearby.

An automobile load of police rushed to the scene failed to find a trace of the bandit.

City Loop Race Tightens As Turk Nash Blanks Leaders, 3 to 0

Bill Mundy and Huffman Stage Great Mound Duel

Each Turns in Six-Hit Performance; "Yock" Whiffs Six; Earl Mundy Leads Attack for Victors.

MAKING his first appearance in City league circles this year, Bill Mundy, veteran performer of the Pottery City district, who has been confining his efforts largely to Midland diamonds, came back last night to left-hand Turk Nash to a shutout victory over Wellsville, the league leaders, at Nicholson Field in one of the best games of the season. The count was 3 to 0.

"Yock" Huffman, Wellsville slacker, who but a week or so ago climbed out of bed following an operation, donned a Wellsville uniform again for this epochal clash, the first of a series that may determine the first half title. Huffman whiffed six Turk Nash batters and confined the opposition sluggers to an even half-dozen bingles, which record was duplicated by Mundy.

The hits, in fact, were infrequent. On only one occasion did Mundy permit the leaders to get two hits in a single frame. On the other hand, no one of the three runs that were scored was driven in by hits, although a safe drive, on three occasions, was ultimately converted into a run.

Hoodoo for Leaders.
The hot corner was a hoodoo station for the league leaders. Two poor throws to third led in two Turk Nash runs. Then, Tommy Adamson, Wellsville third sacker, got around him on two of his four trips out, but each time he perished.

The Motors threw their strongest lineup of the season into the contest in an eleven-hour effort to wrest the first half pennant away from Wellsville and their victory makes the outlook for the Nicholson combine far from bright. If Wellsville succeeds in evening the series in the Thursday night engagement scheduled at Columbus park, then the two clubs will be back where they started before the two-game joust. If they don't, it will be possible for the Turk Nash to nose them out at the wire although the locals still have six games to play in addition to Thursday's.

The two rivals battled three scoreless innings in last night's game. Huffman fanned the first two men facing him. Earl Mundy got on when he drove one through Edwards but Eddie Bayley flew out to right.

Adamson opened with a single for Wellsville, was sacrificed to second by Rager and went to third as the throw on Cal Wagner's grounder popped out of Mundy's glove at first. A few seconds later, however, Bill Mundy caught Wagner off the sack. Edwards grounded out.

After McMath was retired in the second, Watson singled through third but was nipped off, along with Aufderheide in a double killing, Hancock to Edwards, the shortstop coming in for a shoestring catch of Auddy's drive.

Two Singles Wasted.
Both Hancock and Lintner singled in the second with two gone but were left stranded when Huffman flew out to left.

The Motors went down in order in the third while Adamson, in Wellsville's half, made another threatening gesture toward the plate. He smacked out his second single. Rager popped out but Cal Wagner sacrificed. Edwards, however, grounded out to Mundy.

Turk Nash broke the ice in the fourth when two runs clattered over the pan. With one gone, E. Mundy rapped out a single to left and Eddie Bayley duplicated, Mundy stopping at second. Mundy had a big lead-off. Huffman suddenly whipped the ball to Talbott and Mundy was forced to streak it for third. The play developed quickly. Talbott threw hurriedly to Adamson at third but the ball went into the dirt and hopped past the third sacker. Mundy scoring on the overthrow, and Bayley reaching third. A few minutes later Catcher Lintner

And Where to go—By James W. Stuber

As for bass, lay a rule or stick, from the V of the mouth to the V of the tail. Draw a line with a rule or stick from the center of the eye down across the other rule or stick. If the corner of the mouth is in front of the stick across the eye, where the markers cross, it is a small mouth. If it extends beyond the place where they cross it is a large mouth. The small mouth often has a red fleck in the eye. The large mouth generally has a black eye. The small mouth has dark verticle markings. The large mouth has a lateral line marking along its side.

Commonly speaking the corner of the mouth of a large mouth extends back beyond the eye; the corner of the mother of a small mouth, stops in front of the eye. This is the simple easy way to tell.

Large mouth are more likely to be found in lakes, ponds on quiet waters and small mouths in swift water and streams. There are only two kinds of bass in Ohio, the large mouth and the small mouth. Such names as green bass, pond bass, yellow bass or grass bass, are only local names. The color of the bass is influenced by his habitat or surroundings.

Here is the common way to distinguish the pike, pickerel and muskellunge.

The cheeks are scaled on the pike, with the gill covers scaled on the upper part. The lower part is bare of scales. The pickerel is fully scaled on both cheeks and gill covers. The muskellunge is without scales on the lower cheeks or gill covers.

Now that we can tell 'em apart, where shall we go to find them?

Lakeside, Ohio—Lakeside is in Ottawa county on Lake Erie. It is reached by N. Y. C. railway from Toledo or Cleveland to Danbury. From Danbury take Lakeside and Marble head railway to Lakeside. Write Lakeside association for names of guides and locations. Good automobile roads via Fremont or via Port Clinton, to Lakeside. Within easy reach of East, West and Middle Harbors, Pelee Island, Put-In-Bay, or Sandusky marshes. Large and small mouth bass, pike, pickerel, rockbass and bluntnose. Good camping.

Walwhonding River—Coshocton county, Ohio. Reached via Pennsylvania railway to Coshocton. Drive to river. By automobile from Coshocton. Hotel accommodations at Coshocton. Good camping sites along the river. Here is where Columbus and Cleveland fishermen go for small mouth bass and muskellunge. A few pike-perch are also taken.

Muskellunge in Ohio—The most beautiful of all muskellunge are the Ohio "Muskies"—down the Muskingum river. River drive from Marietta or from Zanesville down the river.

Wells Among Leaders In Opening Round Of Amateur Tourney

Former Titlist and Six Others Finish Under 80

Weber, Munro, Sweitzer Top Field With 75's; R. T. Hall Has 84; Play Final 18 Holes to Qualify Today.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 27.—With all indications pointing to a qualifying limit of 166, or a pair of 83's, as a result of performances in yesterday's first 18 holes of the opening round, there is a possibility of at least two East Liverpool golfers breaking into the championship fight of the annual Ohio amateur golf tournament here.

Joe Wells, state champion in 1923 and 1924, will undoubtedly land among the qualifiers. That is taken as a matter of fact following his card of 79 for the first 18 yesterday, four strokes behind the three leaders, Jock Munro, Harold Weber and Harry Sweitzer, who finished in a triple tie with 75's. E. T. Bruch of Cleveland made the circuit for a 77 and Ted Bray, Youngstown, 78. King Malley, Delaware, came in with Wells on a 79.

R. T. Hall, another East Liverpool entry, made the outward journey in 42 and came back in the same figures for a total of 84. If predictions of a qualifying figure of 166 are borne out, it will be necessary for Hall to shave only two strokes from this total in today's round to get under the wire.

Other East Liverpool scores include A. A. Wells, 89; W. E. Wells, 90; Shay, 108; R. H. Simmers, 112. Scores for first 18 holes.

Dodgers Win And Move Into Third Place

One Game Behind Giants, in Second Place.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Four of the National league teams are bunched so closely that the fast-stepping Brooklyn Dodgers were able to jump all the way from fifth to third place by beating Boston twice yesterday, 5 to 1 and 6 to 5. In stretching their winning streak to six straight games, Uncle Wilbert Robinson's nephews passed Cincinnati and Chicago and advanced to within one game of the second place Giants.

The Giants outslugged the Phillies again, 7 to 6, sweeping the series, and are now only five games behind the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals. Don Hurst, the Phils' rookie first baseman, hit his tenth homer.

Grady Adkins, White Sox rookie, held Detroit to three hits and beat them 5 to 2. Gaston of Washington also yielded only three hits against the Athletics and won a brilliant 4 to 1 duel from Ed Rummel with the aid of two home runs by outfielder Barnes. Burdick Grimes, registering his eleventh victory of the season, limited the Cubs to four hits and batted in the only score of the game, but Chicago won the second game from the Pirates by a 7 to 3 score.

Larry Bettencourt clouted a homer with the bases full against Cleveland, the Browns winning, 6 to 3.

The Athletics, staggering under three straight defeats by Washington, are in poor shape for their allegedly crucial series with the Yankees, starting today. The Mackmen are ten games behind the champions.

Rumor Yankees May be Asked to Give up Two Coast Stars — Lary, Reese for "Good of Game"

American League, Say Experts, Cannot Afford 1929 Repetition of Present "no Contest" Affair.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, June 27.—Gossip, the undefeated sprint champion at all weights and ages mounted a dark horse and rode down the backstairs today with the story that American league pressure may be excited, under cover, to have the Yankees pass along Lary and Reese, coast infield stars, to another club "for the good of the game." They are alleged to have cost the Yanks $125,000 for 1929 delivery, which might make any proposal that they be sold, traded or given away with coupons sound slightly false.

It has distinct possibilities, as a matter of fact. In the first place, the American league affair virtually has become "no contest" again and the league can't afford a further repetition in 1929. In the second place, the Yanks don't figure to need Lary and Reese any more than they need somebody to go up there and bash one for Ruth. In the third place, it is the writer's impression that the coast league investment was made mostly with the idea of closing a trade for a pitcher or two in 1929.

The outfits that should be interested are the Cleveland Indians, the Boston Red Sox and the Chicago White Sox.
The Tigers and Browns seem to be set around second base, but the Indians, White Sox and Red Sox must do something about their infielders or resign themselves to the business of going nowhere at a frightful clip.

HERE IS ENGINEERING that really means something to the Automobile Owner

THERE'S a deal of talk these days about the engineering back of this or that car. Most of it covers a multitude of sins or the lack of something definite to talk about in the cars themselves.

Even in the face of this situation, we want to tell you what Reo engineering means to the buyer of a Reo Flying Cloud. Because Reo engineering can be measured by Reo owners in terms of dollars and cents, of performance and comfort.

Here, precisely, are some of the facts about Reo engineering.

1. Reo engineers have the same experimental facilities that are available in any laboratory. This means that Reo engineers test carefully and select materials and parts that they know have the strength and the durability necessary to uphold the Reo reputation for long life.
2. Reo engineers will not content themselves with the road tests possible in a limited testing area. Before the first Flying Cloud ever started down the production lines, Flying Cloud engines, Flying Cloud brakes, Flying Cloud clutches, transmissions, steering gears, axles—every integral part—had been subjected to hundreds of thousands of miles of terrific punishment on the highways of the Middle West, through the sands of the deserts, over the rocky trails of the Sierras, through the muds of Louisiana bottom lands.
3. Reo engineers are admitted leaders in their field. There may be—probably are—others of equal skill and foresight. But Reo engineers are unique in their freedom to develop their ideas and put into effect their plans. For Reo engineers are unrestricted by a financial policy, built of necessity around a huge indebtedness; Reo engineers are unhampered by the production problems imposed inevitably by a large, immobile plant; and Reo engineers are supported by a capable production personnel whose loyalty to Reo is reflected by the lowest rate of labor turn-over in the industry.
4. Because of these conditions, Reo engineers are free to take advantage of new developments quickly, free to pass these along to Reo buyers more promptly, free to direct the production of automobiles which embody engineering ideals rather than production requirements.

These facts about Reo engineering will take on additional significance the moment you compare Reo Flying Cloud performance, comfort, ease and construction with any other car. There's one near you—try it for yourself.

The Constant Flame

Narrative of Love and Struggle
Against Temptations
By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Presently the outside door was opened slowly. Kitten held her breath when a woman came in—exhaled in a noisy sob as the neat, beautiful head lifted. Not Nicky's wife. A stunning woman, tall, dark-eyed. But not Nicky's wife!

One who had wandered in here by mistake, she thought. Yet Nicky was rising, rather unsteadily; greeting her.

"What'n Hades you doing here?" She answered carelessly, "Same thing as you, old dear. Fancy running on to you! Now I'm here—"

Half a dozen untouched cocktails stood on the table; Nicky, complained of slow service, had ordered them all at once and the waiter had brought them on a tray.

Now he moved one of these toward her and she drank it at a gulp. It was then Kitten saw how flushed the woman's face was and how unsteady her vision. Apparently she already had drunk a great deal.

"I was driving around," she volunteered, "and saw the lights. You're a good old thing, Nicky."

"You'll do that once too often," he protested. His eyes, Kitten thought, looked very deep indeed. "Better let me take you home."

"I'm going to stay right here. You go if you like."

"You know I won't. But—"

Kitten broke in, "Nicky, please. I want to go home. You said—"

He paid no attention. The two argued and forgot it as they drank again. The girl was left out.

In a fit of jealous resentment she put on her wrap, hesitated, looking back. They were leaning together, faces close.

She slid out and across the porch, running down the drive.

It was a three-mile walk but she made it. Holding her breath through stretches of woodland, gasping with fear in the shadow.

Once a car passed going at high speed and filled with roisters. Their shouts drifted back to her where she had crouched behind a tree.

Once a fox ran out on the road and stood with its eyes gleaming in the light of a street lamp. She spoke to it, teeth chattering, and it disappeared in the shrubbery.

When she turned into Main street she saw a lone man who called something; at the corner a group of young fellows were talking loudly. She dashed into an alley, hoping they hadn't noticed her.

It was broad daylight when she climbed over the sill into her room.

There was an air of tenseness about the town. Emily caught it at once on her way to the shop.

A small crowd about the door of the cigar store was talking vehemently and there was another crowd in front of the fire house. The corner of Main street looked oddly deserted; this, she realized with mild astonishment, was because Officer Al Randall who did traffic duty there, was absent.

It was a busy day in the shop. Frances had gone down to the city and Emily was trying to plan a house for a movie magnate who had bought an estate back in the country. She took her books and drawing board into the rear room where it was quiet and secluded; otherwise she might sooner have heard the news that had descended like a bolt upon Lyall.

Toward noon she glanced at the clock and thought vaguely of lunch. But she was deep in the problem of the movie magnate's private suite; she worked on.

Once she heard an extra being called; this hadn't happened since the hottest fights between Kent and Morrow's ring. She wondered if they were engaged in a new skirmish.

Abruptly the telephone shrilled; Agnes' voice, queerly strained, spoke over the wire.

"Come home, Emmy. Come right away."

"Muz? You're not ill? Oh—"

"Come, Emmy." The connection broke.

She never knew how she locked the shop and got through the street. Afterward she had a sharp impression of seeing Marty and Anne Morrow at the Judge's window; of jerking back from under the wheels of a truck.

Half way up the hill she found she was carrying her hat; she jammed it on her head crookedly and came into the house with it lending her a rakish look.

Agnes met her, motioning to the living room. In there Kitten shrank on a corner of the divan, pallor spreading over her face, hands rigid.

Al Randall, big and impressive in his uniform, was beside her with Chief Malloy, the other half of the town police force.

Emily stood in a trembling apprehension—swayed—steadied herself against the wall.

"Kitten" Her tone was sharp as a little blade.

Randall came forward with clumsy kindness and put her into a chair. "Now don't you be upset, Miss Emily. It's only we're asking the young'un some questions."

Mrs. Day moaned and Kitten spoke in a chill, flat tone. "I know nothing about it, I tell you!"

Randall exchanged a glance with the Chief. "No," he began with an air of nearly exhausted patience, "we're not saying you do. But you'll not deny you was well acquainted with him. There's plenty seen you. Better talk, Miss. Looks better. Serious thing, a murder."

Emily heard her own voice, thin and far away. "You—you said murder? You said—"

Chief Malloy answered her quietly. "Wickert was shot to death last night at Deep Valley Inn. Your sister spent the evening with him."

CHAPTER 44.

Emily didn't faint. When she felt the blankness stealing upon her she would tell herself, "Don't you dare. See this out—got to see this out—"

Then the wild say again, "Kitten, you met that man? You saw him sometimes?"

And Kitten would answer, defiantly, "I know nothing about it!"

Emily turned to the officers. "She was in the house and asleep at ten o'clock. Her room is next to mine. Please believe me! It's true—"

The Chief shook his head. "She's been seen out with the—with Wickert." He turned quickly to the younger girl. "You came home alone last night? You came in by the alley from Main street? Why did you do that?"

Kitten's face contorted; she ran the tip of her tongue over her lips. "I know nothing about it!"

"She's just a 'aby!' Emily cried miserably. "Just a baby!"

The Chief smiled and glanced at the flaming mop. Out of the deadly stillness in her heart Emily regarded her sister, seeing her as if she were a stranger.

Always she had thought of Kitten as a little thing, petulant, capricious child with carefully guarded small secrets, a craving for thrills.

Now she realized it was all wrong. Kitten was nineteen—grown up. Old enough to love and be loved; old enough, perhaps, to carry on an affair with Nicky Wickert!

That burned itself into her thought, sent a smothering heat over her. Supposing it were true that Kitten had met him; that she had gone to the road house with him last night?

"You—you wouldn't arrest her? She's—oh, this terrible thing will be cleared. Ruin her life if—if suspicion—"

Tears fell now, blurring the words.

It was Randall who put out a great paw and patted her shoulder. "Don't get upset, Miss Emmy. We'll just leave her in your care, see? Don't let her be going out of town it all.

"And they'll want her at the inquest tomorrow. Nothing rough; just some questions."

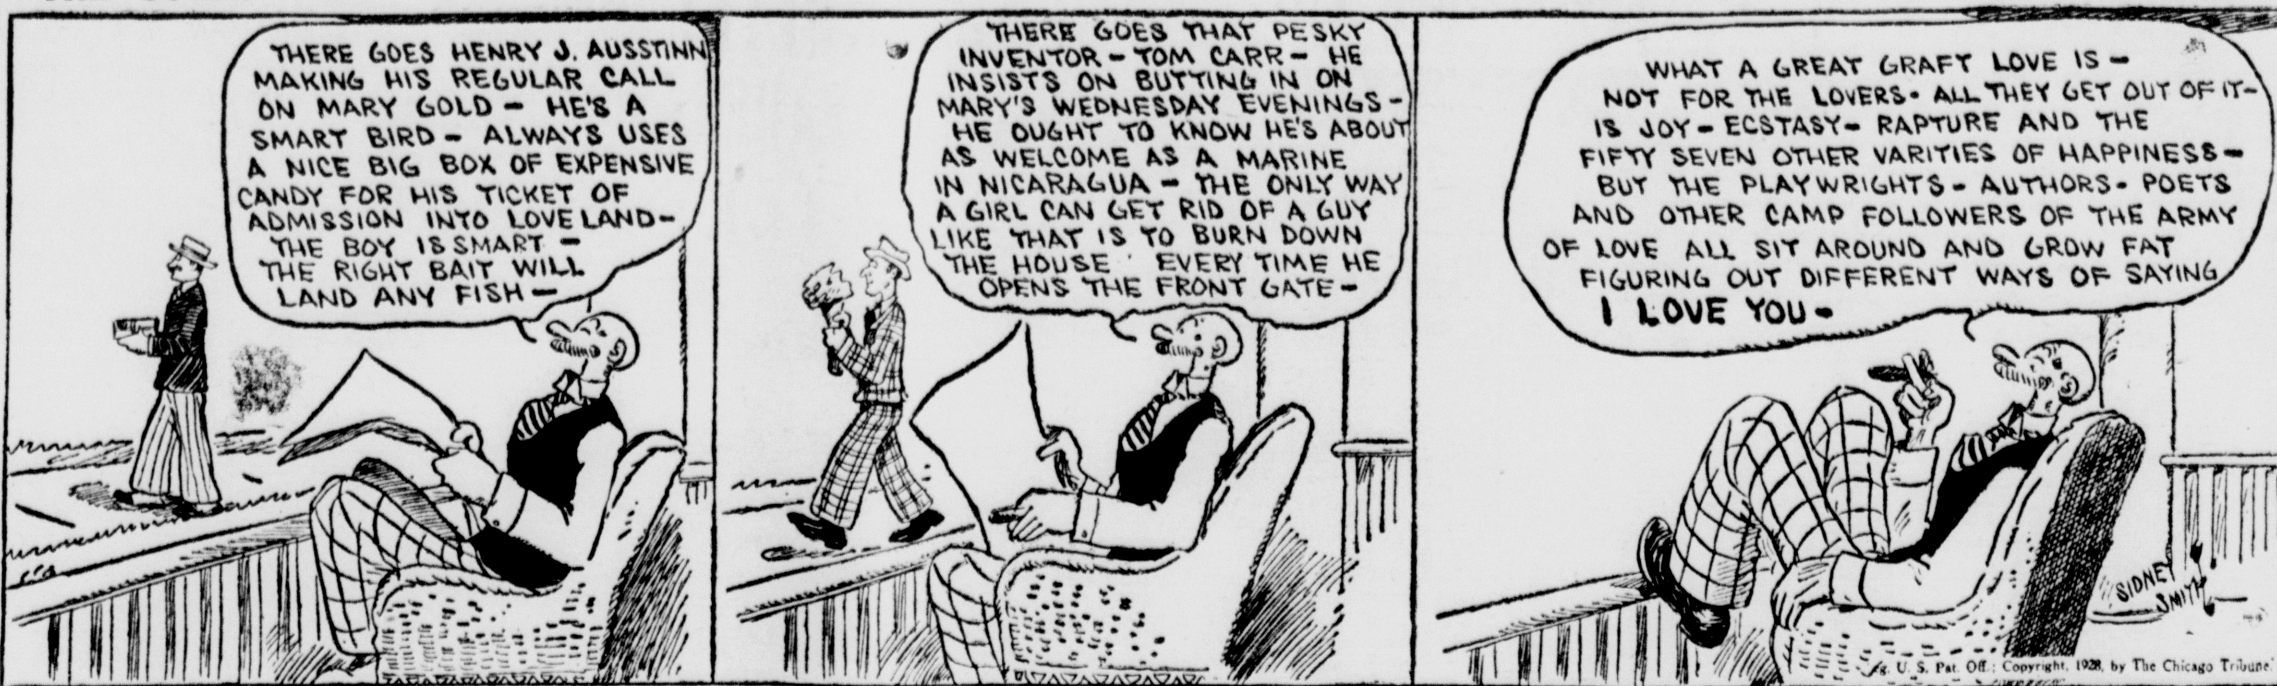

The Chief said, kindly, "We'll make it easy as we can for you, Miss Day."

Emily sobbed "Thank you" and they went away. It was long afterward that she knew just how considerate they had been.

Kitten sat as she had throughout the interview, huddled on the divan. Agnes gave way to hysteria.

STUMP SPEAKING

Van Namee Expects Tour Through Middle West.

By Raymond J. Borst.
HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—Taking it for granted that Gov. Al Smith is as good as nominated for president, managers of the New York executive today were quietly discussing the kind of a campaign they expect him to wage.

While the Smith leaders made it clear they are not speaking for the governor, they are, however, convinced the campaign will be one of the most intensive and picturesque ones the country has witnessed in many a year.

"I am certain there will not be any front porch campaign to the one Governor Smith will wage," said George R. Van Namee, pre-convention manager for the New York executive.

Van Namee said that while he had no official knowledge of what the governor would do, he felt pretty well convinced there would be a tour through the middle west and even the extreme west.

Governor Smith's closest friends do not expect he will begin his active campaign until the early part of September. In the meantime, they expect he will either remain in Albany or spend a few weeks in the Adirondack mountains, only a few hours' drive from the state capital at Albany.

By going to the Adirondacks the governor will not only be able to keep in close touch with state business but will be able to indulge in his favorite sport—golf.

DEMS' KEYNOTER ATTACKS G. O. P., URGES UNITY

Claude G. Bowers Delivers Masterpiece of Invective.

SCOURGES FOE

Calls for War Against "Privilege and Pillage."

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
SAM HOUSTON HALL, Houston, Texas, June 27.—A ringing call to arms for the enlistment of all Democrats in a great battle to "throw the rascals out" was sounded here last night by Claude G. Bowers in his keynote speech opening the Democratic national convention.

It was accompanied by a slashing, stinging, savage attack on the Republican administration of the last eight years—an indictment that for sheer severity of tone and brilliancy of expression probably has had few equals in the history of American political conventions.

"Plunderers," "pillagers," "corruptionists," "criminals," "autocrats," "bureaucrats," "thieves" and "rascals"—these were but a few of the terms used by the New York editor.

His first sentence was a clarion challenge: "The American Democracy has mobilized today to wage a war of extermination against privilege and pillage."

Marks Path for Party.

His last sentence was an appeal for Democratic unity in the great undertaking: "The predatory forces before us seek a triumph for the sake of sacking. Their shock troops are the black horse cavalry whose hoofbeats have made hideous music on Pennsylvania avenue for the last eight years. In the presence of such a foe 'he who dallies is a dastard and he who doubts is damned.' In this connection we close debate and grasp the sword. The time has come. The battle hour has struck. Then to your tents, O, Israel."

Bowers clearly marked out for the Democrats the path they are to follow in the oncoming presidential battle "throw the rascals out."

In the face of the oil scandals, the veterans' bureau scandals, "the most shameful carnival of corruption that has ever blackened the reputation of a decent and self-respecting people," in the "packing of commissions," in the face of "invisible government for privilege" on every hand, "in the contemptuous looting of the farmer"—in the face of all this, and more, he asserted, the duty of the Democracy becomes crystal clear to sink its own differences and petty quarrels and "throw the rascals out."

As for the Democrats, Bowers declared, "we put no legislation on the auction block. No Harry Sinclair has paid our debts. We are free. We unfurl the Jeffersonian banner, 'A good government is an honest government' and we invite all enemies of corruption to fight with us beneath its folds for the redemption of the violated honor of the republic."

The conflict between the Republicans and Democrats this year, Bowers declared, goes back to the very fundamentals of government—the question of whether the Hamiltonian philosophy "government for wealth and privilege" or the Jeffersonian concept of "equal rights" shall prevail for the next four years.

Refers to Farm Relief.
It was in this connection that he dwelt upon the controversial question of agricultural relief. He asserted that for eight years "big business" as represented by highly protected corporations had profited enormously while unprotected agriculture had languished and sickened.

He declared there has been a thirty billion dollar depreciation in the value of farm property in the last eight years, and "two million farmers have been driven from the paternal acres within the year."

"The result is a condition of ruin that is a disgrace to our civilization."

"When business profits from legislation," he asserted, it is described as "patriotic statesmanship," when the farmer demands his share "they denounce him as a radical and a crank."

The Democrats, he said, "do not ask paternalistic privilege for the farmer but we do demand that the hand of privilege be taken from the farmers' pockets and off the farmers' throats. We do not propose that the most basic of all our industries shall longer be a doormat for all the others to wipe their feet on as they enter the 'temple of privilege.'"

Of prohibition, Bowers was silent. Save for a laudation of the Jeffersonian doctrine of state's rights, there was nothing in his epochal speech that referred even indirectly to this most controversial problem here at Houston.

His speech was a classic of attack, on the party in power, and with it a masterpiece of invective and assault ways the fervent plea to Democrats not to quarrel, not to fight, but to unite against the common foe.
